

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Finally, a decent smallmouth

Re: Finally, a decent smallmouth

Author: : afishinado

Date: : 2013/5/10 7:10:57

URL:

Quote:

TimMurphy wrote:

Dear Stagger,

Like you've already heard try the Delaware.

I fished it a lot 30 years ago and would suggest you start out around the Yardley boat ramp or Washington's Crossing Park since I'm certain you can still access the river in those locations.

There are other spots along River Road, just drive along and search some out. Keep in mind you can fish from the Jersey side as well with your PA license. There are parks and boat launches on both side of the river that will serve as access points, as well as a few remaining wide spots where you can park along River Road and get to the water.

If you want to range a bit further try the Schuylkill River. It's smaller than the Delaware. I used to like fishing it from Port Clinton down to Hamburg, but again it's been quite a while since I've fished there.

You can also check out the Perkiomen and Tohickon Creeks.

That ought to get you started.

Regards,

Tim Murphy 😊

^ all still true. Good advice.