For those of you that may not be aware, the EPA released an updated draft of their risk assessment regarding large scale mining operations in the Bristol Bay watershed.

As part of this release process, they have re-opened the public comment period. This is a very important part of the process, as the EPA makes a determination on whether to leverage the Clean Water Act to prevent mining from coming to the world's most prolific sockeye salmon fishery (not to mention the 30-some other species that abound in the waters of the Bristol Bay watershed).
