I learned the latin names for shrubbery as a lad and it turned me off of the proper pursuit of piscatorial pronouns, so I just threw a size 12 brown biot body with light dun wing dry and called it a day. Apparently my thumb is bigger than you give credit for, when I'm done tying cicadas or I start my friday night beer binge, whichever comes first, I'll post some additional views of the quill and the predator that was dining on them.
