The company I work for uses a long term weather forecasting service operated by Herb Stevens. Some of you may know him as the Skiing Weather Man. His forecasts are extremely accurate and here is what he has to say about this upcoming weekend at the Jam.

Right now it looks pretty quiet out there next weekend. A weak cool front could set off scattered showers on Friday, but that looks very much hit or miss. High pressure will move in for the weekend and bring pretty nice weather...that is the way it looks right now. Low 70's by day, upper 40's/low 50's at night.
