So, I put the hurt on some smaller stripers on Saturday with olive/white and brown/white clousers about an hour after high tide at Townsends Inlet. They were cruising the shallows. Didnt have to cast far.

Shitty thing was..they would only hit when the rain was POURING for some reason. Once it got sunny or clear again, they'd shut off.

Missed a few Bluefish late Saturday night. A few minor blitzes going off but they'd only last about 45 seconds.

Even chucked some live bait for the hell of it with no takers on mackerel or clam.
