Foxgap gets it! It really is a shame and I see it in other aspects with young people but not surprisingly when you see the parents often enough you understand completely where the disrespect for others comes from. I coach youth wrestling and I once found a big ol' nasty lugie on my passenger side window as I left a tournament. Some kid was just walking by and spit right on a random window like it doesn't matter 'cause it's not his. Thankfully I see enough young people that are indeed respectful that I'm not completely jaded.
