I didn't accuse people of "missing the real issue" or any such thing. I just noted that irresponsible behavior is mundane, whereas the sub-topic about the dangers of condoning illegalities on your land was equally deserving of people's interests.

I didn't see anyone blaming the landowner for the issue of irresponsibility of the guest. I did see a few concerned posters wanting to comment on the statement portraying the landowner as condoning illegal activities.

Let's try this:

"The landowner caught the kids keeping more than their legal limit. He told them it was OK, so long as they cleaned up after themselves."

Do you think people should not comment about that?
