Paulson.....WOW!!!! What a cool video , Thank YOU!!!

Thank you for the discussion and getting me curious! I am still dumbfounded I never thought to research this topic more. Reading more on midges makes it even more interesting and informative. Better yet, I'm going to start keeping my index finger on the fly line to create that movement with out introducing slack into my line. Or, I could try my index and middle finger with the line routed in between them and use a flicking motion with both fingers. This is going to be a good weekend!

So the mayfly life cycle swim patterns and so forth are similar to the cycle of the caddis as well? Or are caddis mayflies as well? Sorry totally new to the whole bug thing.

I can assume but I won't because it's an educated guess. I'm right there with you.
