Decided to make the almost 3 hour drive to fish Falling Springs Branch for the first time yesterday.

Wow.

Not exactly the right choice for the day.

Surprisingly, I was able to get what I thought were quality drifts through that maze of watercress and weeds, but wasn't able to lure any fish out.

Conditions seemed primed for an evening hatch, but despite prowling the stream till I wouldn't have been able to see to tie on a fly, I saw only a single rising fish, which I succeeded in spooking.
