Thanks, I seem to be getting used to it. Seems like it takes much less muscle and better timing. I'm not tangling the leader every time and I've caught quite a few on it so far so I don't think I'm doing it all wrong ha. It sure is fun catching em on such a light rod though.

As far as the kiddos. My step brother is out in nevada and just started both his girls fly fishing. I think the youngest is 4. He got her the redington form game rod I believe and zip tied a reel on it ha.
