It is more of a brushy flat stream than a typical high gradient mountain stream. It's been over 10 years since I last fished there so things may have changed since I last fished there. I mainly used to fish the FFO area. It was stocked Browns and Brookies. I did catch some wild Brookies and even a few wild Browns, but they were mainly small. The hatches were decent for a stream of that type and the fish seemed to rise well to attractors. I used to fish it in early to mid June. I always found it an enjoyable stream to fish and a nice diversion from Penns or Big Fishing.
