Just because you can doesn't mean you should.

Do you have an actual need to fill two different reels with 3wt fly lines?

If yes, then just cut the thing in half. Problem solved.

If no, then you're making a whole lot of work for zero gain. Turn it around when it wears out like everyone else has done for the last century.

I can also assure you that two feet of level line at the front of your shiny new line makes absolutely no difference at all to anything except your imagination and the guy who comes up with the marketing for the All New Rio Trout LT-X X-Treme Weighted Fly Taper Short-Long-Delicate-Weight-Designated-Taper line from Rio all new for 2014.

Its not rocket science, its just string.
