I try to give shops (and any business for that matter) two attempts to earn my business. As has been stated, sometimes people just have a bad day. I try to be understanding of that. Who knows what is going on in someone's life. If after two visits to a shop, I still get poor treatment then I take my business elsewhere.

Only one time did I leave a shop without purchasing what I had intended to buy due to poor service. That shop, Cutthroat Anglers in Colorado, had a young man who basically treated me as if I knew jack crap about flyfishing. The irony was that I have probaly flyfished for more years than he was alive and I am just entering middle age.

If after a few days it is still bugging you, I say call the owner. I just try to not let people's inconsiderate attitudes ruin my precious few days on the water.
