

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Not going there again

Re: Not going there again

Author: : FarmerDave

Date: : 2013/5/23 14:46:49

URL:

Quote:

PennypackFlyer wrote:

I can't understand why someone has to quote someones post when they are directly following?

Nobody ever "HAS TO" use quotes, but I don't know why it would bother anyone when they do. I can think of a few reasons why one might use quotes in this scenario.

1. Sometimes by the time you hit submit, someone else has responded so without the quote, it looks like you are responding to the latest. Once you submit, it is a pain in the ass to go back and add the quote using the edit feature to clarify who you are addressing.

2. Maybe you are only commenting on one point (not quoting the whole thing).

3. I have had times where I have responded to a message only to find that the original message had been edited sometime between the time I started typing and actually hit submit.