I understand the area after crossing the wooden walking bridge near the tunnel to cross the creek is now heavily posted with no access permitted on the old railroad bed.

Can someone please confirm that?

If you have been there you are probably familiar with the camp in that location and how the landowner has been clearing out the trees on the south side of the railroad bed.

I used to walk quite a ways from the bridge and cut down onto Penns from the railroad bed.

Is access to the same railroad bed available from Ingleby road or is there land owner problems there too?

Any suggestions how to get downstream from the parking area / wooden bridge?
