My only organized box is my winter box which is also basically my midge and nymph box. I have a large mismatched box of streamers, dries, and various other flies. Eventually I have learned where everything is automatically so I know where to reach in my vest. From there I have an open section in my large box for flies I'm using that day or what's "hot" for the season. I look at my fly selection as a mile wide, one inch deep.
