

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : More brookie streams that no one fishes

Re: More brookie streams that no one fishes

Author: : k-bob

Date: : 2013/5/26 5:23:51

URL:

Dwight right there are some tannic streams that are mostly brown trout... Tannic water tends to be more acidic, but maybe in those cases the acidity is not too high for browns and they take over the stream. But most of the poconos streams with swampy headwaters I have fished seemed to have more brookies than browns. Kistler, spruce run in monroe, etc