
Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Fracking Issues 101

Re: Fracking Issues 101

Author: : DanW

Date: : 2013/5/26 7:47:32

URL:

Quote:

David wrote:

agree with Mo on this one... So Dan and G'ville, you are ok if they take that frack water and run it through your sink?

Really... you don't care if Uranium is in there just because it wasn't "put in" by the fracking company?

Sounds like company line semantics to me. You should get a raise!

Where did you get the idea that waste fracking fluid will run through my sink? Let me guess, from the same site that claimed the drillers put uranium into the fracking fluid? Perhaps you should consider that if a site is lying to you on one fact, you should be skeptical of the other "facts" from that source. Since uranium is coming back up from these wells after fracking, that tells me that the waste fracking fluid MUST be captured and properly/safely disposed. If a driller is just dumping the fluid then they are breaking the law, should be severely punished and never allowed to drill in PA again.

As to me getting a raise, I work IT and not for any oil or gas company. I'm just trying to clear up some of the misinformation. The truth is just a Google search away for those interested in doing research with an open mind. But it seems many prefer to believe the FUD.