thanks hammer, yeah i shot all of it via hand held, the product stuff and the shop shots are going to be re shot some time this week. going back with more light and strobes for my dslr. the previous time i shot there there was a bunch of sun shining in and made for way better light.

as for the song, not only is it an awesome song but the story is pretty amazing as well, eric ayotte is the musician, and the song was written from his grand father's poetry. all of eric's life he always knew his grandfather was just a cranky old guy, and when he passed he found a notebook with his poetry in it. so eric took the poems, wrote songs out of them, and once the album was done gave it to his father for father's day.

as for insperation, i think this is my personal fav:

so well produced!!!!

and now i'm wishing i had a dslr body that shot vid, especially since i'm familiar with my lenses already, just wish i had $3000 to throw at a new body. that d800 would be perfect, way better megapixel count and awesome vid capabilities. just too bad it's a hobby and not a real paying ordeal...
