yeah my selection was based on a google search of free video editor and a few reviews later that was the one. as for the shaky stuff, i'm gonna rig my tripod to my long board and that should gt rid of the product shot shakes but the people shots are as they are because those were a one time shot deal.

and you wanna talk about scary, some how when i play the straight from the camera footage through windows media player the footage is trash, but through quick time it's workable, the hardest thing so far has been shakes, and white balance.
