I'm not sure whether to bust out laughing or shake my head over this paradox, but it has become the unwritten truth here.

Reminds me of a post on the old FFP forum years ago at the peak of it's haughtiness / snarkiness: "I went fishing recently on a PA stream. It's possible that the stream had trout, and there may or may not have been a hatch, which I may or may not have matched. I may have done quite well, but then again maybe not. Thanks for letting me share."
