I live very close to FSB. I've fished there probably 5-7 times and have been skunked every time. My first visit was the closest I got to catching anything. I might have set a hook for a few seconds! I've noticed that some days the trout are visible, some days it looks and fishes like its barren. I've never even seen a trout rise there. You can drift a fly with perfect presentation in all the best lies, over and over again, and nothing happens. It will drive you mad! I'll be going back when the it gets too warm for freestone fishing.
