They are in there. You just have to locate them which is easier said than done due to the size of the pools.

I might pass on 15 steady risers to find the one I want to cast to. 😬 There's just a lot of things that need to fall into place up there...wind, sun or lack of, temps, flows, clarity, hatches, fishing pressure, boat traffic, barometric pressure. If you can get all of the variables to align, you can have good / great days but it doesn't happen often.

Which ones do you cast to? How do you decide? Why float by a steady riser without trying to cover the fish with a decent cast and drift?
