Very nice. They are beautiful fish and very opportunistic feeders rarely passing up a potential meal. However, you do need to have some stealth in your approach particularly in low, gin clear water conditions and bright sunny skies. If you happen to put them down in a certain hole you may as well go to the next one because it is "game over" in that hole for a while. As you experienced if you manage to get a fly in there without them knowing you are there, you are in business! Lots of fun!!
