FWIW, I was suckered into buying the very pricey Bean River Treads last year because the saleswoman told me her husband says they're "more comfortable than his real shoes." She was correct.

With a lifetime satisfaction guarantee, I plan to get 5 to 6 years out of the investment before I feel the boot has lived to a reasonable lifetime of service. FWIW, due to bad stitching, I did have the first pair replaced.

I walked in, presented my case, and walked out 15 minutes later with new boots.
