I was fishing the Bushkill yesterday in the morning and there was a hatch i suspected going on because there were mayflies on the water. Im new to identifiy the different hatches and didnt think hatches occured in the morning. they were were mostly white the trout were feeding fiercly on them. What hatch occurs in the morning and what flies should i use, i tried a light cahil and a quill gordon and only got one response. Any suggestions on what to use
