

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Advice for Penns Creek tomorrow

Re: Advice for Penns Creek tomorrow

Author: : krayfish

Date: : 2013/6/5 11:12:54

URL:

Well, if the guy owns the land, you have no rights to fish there even if it's an epic hatch. Chalk up more stream access lost. The parking lot in the lower section was full at 5pm. When I came out there were cars all along the shoulder and there isn't a shoulder on that road. If the lot is full....go to a different section. If that's also full, go to a different stream. It's an overrated fishing experience anyhow. When the drakes are on...cars from CT, NJ, MD, VA, OH and NY. If you're driving that far to see a bunch of big maylies and combat fish, probably should find another use for your time. If you caught 20 fish 20" during the hatch, I could understand.....but you don't. Don't worry about me running away to join that circus for another 10 years. By then I'll forget the mess and get talked into going again.