
Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Toothy Critter Success Thread

Re: Toothy Critter Success Thread

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2013/6/5 16:59:06

URL:

Nice!

I'm really impressed with the size of the pike you guys have been sticking recently - definitely not "hammer handles." The fish look really healthy and fat and many of them are over 30 inches in length. Sometimes post spawn pike during the warmer months can get rather lean looking.....but not the pike you guys have been hitting.

PA isn't really known as a destination pike state but we have some good fish if you know where to look for 'em.

Monday looked like a good day for fishing (at least here in the SC) with big clouds and a cold front moving over. Days like this have often treated me well when after pike/muskies. As it was, I had yesterday to fish - bright sun, post frontal conditions and not a cloud in the sky. I hucked muskie streamers all afternoon on my favorite river and didn't see a fish. Couldn't even tempt a bass. Bluebird days are tough.

My hard luck streak with toothy critters continues. 😞