Mainly due to region and proximity, I'm a headwaters guy. The streams I fish don't have rhodo tunnels, but they're small. Think upper valley creek. In every one, there's at least an 18" fish, and that's why I use a three wt; It's still lite enough to be fun and scales the fight to the average fish better than a four or five wt, but it has the nuts for those lunkers and the flies they prefer.
