Here's one I took a photo of in 2012 about mid June hanging on the side of a gas pump at the Sheetz at Clarks Ferry along the Susquehanna River. Pretty much looks like the same critter to me. I have trouble telling the difference between the separate species of Hexagenia but as a whole they are fairly distinct in their markings. They are really cool to watch as they swarm over a creek just before dark, sometimes I catch myself just watchin' and not fishin'.
