If you're looking for some wild trout streams, you have quite a few options. The closest to you, would be to the east of Burbank, in the mountains north of the 210. Further east, in the mountains above San Bernardino, you'll have a few more options.

North on the 5, and you will have a few streams in the Los Padres NF to fish. There are also a few bass lakes in this direction, some of which also hold trout and stripers.

Even further north you have the Kern river, from Burbank about 2 hours to the lower Kern and 2 1/2 to 3 hours to the upper Kern.

If you want a little more detail, send me a PM and I'll try to help you out.

Also keep in mind most of the streams are going to be running low for this time of year, due to this past dry winter.
