Nice key and photos. I particularly like that the creators included some of the various color phases of the individual species which tend to trip some anglers up and make them think that they have caught a "new" species of fish for the area or water body that they typically fish.

I am not going to get into the green sunfish hybrid issue mentioned by Swattie above; it just is not that important to me. We identify them simply as sunfish hybrids as we process fish from various types of sampling gear.
