Really krayfish? Does it matter what you use? I'm just sayin there may be a situation where you use 7x and use the drag, believe it or not. Just because you don't doesn't mean no one else does. Just trying to give this guy some advice on a cheap reel I have some experience with. That's all. I don't own 8x either but I do use 7x from time to time and I'm sure other people do also.

Im sure Kray didn't mean anything by it. No worries. Being an advocate for a click drag I'll add that a soft tipped rod is great for protecting light tippetts. I don't own 7x but there have been times on Spring Ck where I'd tie on a size 24 midge and wish I had it.
