I was on the Brodhead this morning which is about 10-15 miles from Ressica Falls. It was still a little high but definitely fishable. It's lightly raining out today in Stroudsburg so if the water stays clear enough the trout should be able to see the BWO's as I'm sure they're hatching today. Not sure when or if you plan to fish the Bushkill at Ressica but it's not ideal conditions currently but still definitely fishable. Water temperature should not be an issue either.
