

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : White Fly Watch

Re: White Fly Watch

Author: : greenghost

Date: : 2008/8/4 8:38:09

URL:

guys,

I fished Slippery Rock last night. Like you said albatross, the bugs started at 8:30. From then until pitch dark, the action was awesome. I caught about a dozen fish and missed many more, especially when it got too dark. Nothing of any real size this trip, all were from 8 to 13 inches, but man were they fun! Caught them all on top using a small white popper fished quartering downstream and skated across the surface. They would simply smash it. Had to replace a cork popper which are usually pretty durable. I fished upstream of 422, above Rose Point. The bugs were coming off pretty thick, not a blizzard, more like a snow shower. ;^)

Have fun out there.

greenghost