

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : The "Troutiest" of rods?

Re: The "Troutiest" of rods?

Author: : krayfish

Date: : 2013/6/11 14:02:38

URL:

By "troutiest" I think they are simply referring to the 2 sizes that are most often associated with trout fishing, most popular and / or most versatile for trout fishing.

As for deceptive labeling of gear, I agree. You buy a 4 weight....unless you have 50' of line out, it doesn't flex. Ok, you should over-line it with 5 wt line then. If that's the case, you bought a 5 wt that says 4 wt on the blank. Why not just buy a 5 weight to start with? If I buy a 4 wt, it's because I want a 4 wt. The rod makers should stop the shenanigans and make the label match the actual line weight.

I had a Sage TCX 5 weight 2 years ago. I'm positive it would have handled a 7 weight....no problem. To me, that's BS.