My daughter, visiting from California, wanted to learn how to fly fish. Her mom lives on the West Branch of the Brandywine, so I considered fishing there for smallmouth and whatever else you catch in that stream. I decided that, if you really want to learn, we'll fish Valley. We went today.

I didn't fish and just tried to help her through it. First time ever, lo and behold, she picked it up pretty quickly. Caught seven in four hours including 13 and 14 inchers. She named one "Mike".

I tried to get a shot of the 14 incher but it squirmed out of her hand as I was getting ready to take the picture. Yes, she landed and released them herself. Was I proud? Certainly, but probably more in shock at her success!!!!

Have some pics, but can't seem to add them.
