Hoping to catch some largemouth and panfish. I've heard mixed reviews. I'll be fishing on the fly and dad will have the spin rod. Between the two of us we should catch something...fingers crossed 🤞

Long Pine is a beautiful lake and I kayak it frequently with my wife. The fishing is poor due to the high acidity of the water. When it was impounded 40+ years ago it was stocked with WW fish including pike, muskies, walleyes etc. They failed to survive. Subsequent efforts to establish a trout fishery also failed. The lake does have a population of stunted bluegills and perch. There are also some LMs (a few of which are very large) but sometimes you have to really hunt for the bass as they tend to be deep on sunny days to to the extremely clear water.

Great lake for boating, hiking, and sightseeing. When I'm fishing I go elsewhere.
