

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Wild or Not Bow

Re: Wild or Not Bow

Author: : NickR

Date: : 2013/6/12 12:43:28

URL:

I too think wild bows are some of the hardest to distinguish. Here is another wild Berks County wild bow. Maybe a little pale in comparison to some of the brighter colors on other wild bows but this bow had more vivid tan colors on its fins scales that appear to be much smaller and more sleek, and a tannish hue on it's body. Granted small wild bows are not something I come across often in PA unless I am targeting them in specific streams so I really cannot say what really classifies as a wild bow as unique but this one really is a bit different than most others I have seen. To be honest I wish we had more of them around these parts. This little fish was one of the prettiest I have ever seen.

Attach file:

 wild bow berks.jpg (199.53 KB)

