The people, not the equipment.

You post to FFR, and have witnessed that everyone is absolutely positive that every "vintage" rod needs to be lined at least one heavier, and that any modern maker's dual rated rod, its [a]lways the heavier line.

Now, if you'll pardon me, I have to go over there and start a dozen odd threads about which expensive reel matches which expensive rod I just bought by posting two dozen identical photos of Hardys on reel seats.
