

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Thinking about a 7 weight

Thinking about a 7 weight

Author: : cwwbell

Date: : 2013/6/13 10:50:13

URL:

I have a 4, a 6, and a 9. Thinking about adding a rod to the roster and thinking it's going to be either a 9' 7 weight or possibly a different 6 weight. The 6 weight I have is in need of repair, it's a St Croix Avid 9' 2 piece. It's been stepped on and is missing the last 4 inches or so. I filed it down to make the second to last guide the new tip top and it casts well still but is missing something. I guess my question is will a 7 weight add much versatility to my arsenal? I would like to do more warmwater fishing, for river smallies and largemouths in lakes. Also possibly headed up to Fall Creek in Ithaca once or twice this Fall to fish for Landlocks. Lately really love tossing big articulated streamers for trout too. Thinking about a TFO BVK, already got a Sage 1880 reel on the way that could be rigged with a #7 line.