

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : SE PA SMB

Re: SE PA SMB

Author: : SurfCowboyXX

Date: : 2013/6/13 11:42:02

URL:

Stripers don't eat smallies, really. No when you have the kind of baitfish base that the Delaware has. They aren't going to expend the kind of energy it takes to catch a bass when they have schools of other baitfish to eat. And when they open their mouths they are able to capture many, not just one. They will eat the hell out of some trout though, but I don't think that is an issue down here. The striper population hasn't grown in the Delaware enough to explain the smallie issue, anyway.