

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : 9 mile creek, NY

Re: 9 mile creek, NY

Author: : SBecker

Date: : 2013/6/13 13:54:42

URL:

Quote:

mcwillja wrote:

I live about 20 minutes from ninemile creek. It is loaded with fish. This stream should not be stocked but it is. Scuds are very effective. I use a walts worm when nymphing and that is all I ever need.

Hatches are sparse on ninemile in general but the sulphur hatch can be strong. It will be winding down by the end of june but I would have some nonetheless. I have come across some BWOs in late june early july as well. Isos in the fall too. Midge fishing can be fun as well. PM me when the time gets closer and I may know more what is going on. I don't fish it as much as i used to .

The good news about this creek is it stays cold all year no matter the outside temps. Below the town of marcellus it is essentially a true spring creek. I have never taken a water temp above 60-62 in august.

Beetles and ants are great for this creek too.

Thanks Mc! I have heard scuds or WW's are money.