I love my BVK, but I have broken it 2 times in 6 months. my buddy I fish with alot out here has broken his 4 times in a little over a year. I wonder if the light weight of it sacrifices some of the shock absorbing ability. All the breaks were either casting or hook setting.

Honestly the only two differences that I could tell between the BVK and the mangrove are a softer tip on the mangrove which was nice for close in work and it was slightly heavier than the BVK.

I have been trying to keep the blog a little more up to date. I fell away from it for a little bit. I hope you continue to enjoy it.
