Yeah, on the game lands there, there are some pretty obvious spots where people have camped, and they left a bunch of crap ranging from standard trash to old tents and pans and such. I usually pick up some of the smaller stuff and take it out, but it'd take a day devoted to just that to really clean it up right.

Still, as I said, you can get there without crossing private land. It's state forest. It's just a little harder to do it that way.
