Not sure why I was quoted for your monologue, but I was (again) observing why the attitudes that exist, exist. I am all for allowing people/corps. to experiment where the risk of harm is low. I am against them gambling with the rest of our collective health and enjoyment. And, they should pay the cost of residual harm, whether preventable or not. Why should my health and safety be put at risk to let someone or something else exploit our environment for personal gain?
