

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : The Old Farm Pond

The Old Farm Pond

Author: : dc410

Date: : 2013/6/14 21:34:46

URL:

Sometimes IMO there is nothing better than stopping by the old farm pond on the way home from work on a Friday afternoon. For me its like therapy just sneaking around the pond and busting some largemouths and 'gills on the flyrod. It's kind of like a throwback to my childhood days when I first started flyfishing and learning how to cast on some of these ponds. Today I had about a 6" bluegill hooked which was being constantly attacked by two decent Largemouths the whole time I was bringing it in. I have had that happen before in fact I do remember hooking a largemouth bass on the fly that I was playing a bluegill on years ago on this same pond. Some of the larger slab 'gills really put up a great fight. Had a whole lot of action in a short period of time and a whole lot of fun!

Here are a few pictures from this afternoon.

Attach file:

---

 The Pond.jpg (39.83 KB)

 Bluegill 4.jpg (32.24 KB)

 LMB 3.jpg (29.86 KB)

 Bluegill 5.jpg (33.34 KB)

 LMB 4.jpg (36.53 KB)

