

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : More brookie streams that no one fishes

Re: More brookie streams that no one fishes

Author: : k-bob

Date: : 2013/6/18 8:45:35

URL:

right, it may not be water temps. the upper stream, with more swamps in headwaters, could have been too acidic for brookies, or something else. maybe the effect of acidity is worse at higher water temps?

And I only have "caught brookies/didn't catch brookies" info one day.

still you have to choose streams from maps, and while I thought the upper stream (steeper as it descends to Lehigh, more twists) would have nicer pools, we didn't see any fish in them.

make sure the geese don't chase back!