Have to wait for this 700 cfs coming out of the dam to hit 4-500 to be somewhat fishable up high in the Gorge. At least the water is high and cold and it is not 100 degree heat wave.....so that is positive. Going to be 88 on Saturday and 88 for a few days, check the usgs temp coming out of the dam for a general temperature, water will get colder and pick up a lot of volume around White Haven.

Cicadas....I'm sure they are somewhere along the river, gotta explore.

Caddis of all sizes will get fish to come up when there are no hatches, dries and emergers. Golden stoneflies are always on the bottom. Sulphurs and slate drakes will be around. Go to evening hatch.com for a hatch chart.....they need to update their reports more often, but it's a good place to get an initial reference.
