
Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : another question for Mike

Re: another question for Mike

Author: : SBecker

Date: : 2013/6/19 20:46:35

URL:

Quote:

sandfly wrote:

wonder what everyone would do without their camera's !

hey lou are you a beginner ???

Well since cameras have been around since the middle of the 1800's.....

Before that they did sketches and drawings.

Before that they did carvings and paintings on cave walls.

Do you mean before digital cameras? Well they would take pictures with film and scan them into the computer as jpegs.

Before internet? They used encyclopedias and went to the library to figure out fish identification. Or they took a picture with film and mailed it to the PFBC for answers.

No one stated LouM is a begginer. Jason and I both realize Lou is a very old timer that has fly fished all his life. His poop has more fishing knowledge then me. However, LouM also has fished the L.L. a billion times I expect, and those FUGLY rainbows are all over there. So one is to assume they are ugly stockies that have escaped their watery prison.

If he honestly did not know that, he might be getting very forgetful.